Thanks to the efforts of over 400 Climate Riders, Runners, and Hikers we granted $743,000 in 2018. 2019 brought a remarkable 600 participants, allowing us to award over $800,000 in grants. This brings our total impact to more than $6 million since 2008. In this presentation, you will find our Annual Reports for fiscal years 2018 and 2019.

With the support and confidence of the Climate Ride community, we have made 2018 and 2019 banner years for our movement. Our inaugural Green Fondo Weekend event engaged a record 250 cyclists – 70% of whom were new to the Climate Ride cause.

Your support matters – deeply. You have helped Climate Ride realize its goal of healthier people and planet. Our combined efforts to generate powerful grants have resulted in direct support for public lands, clean air, renewable energy, and alternative transportation. Together, we’ve engaged new stewards and new voices for the modern environmental movement. Our small staff of five could not be prouder to serve our participants, donors, and supporters.

Thank you for providing the foundation for our progress. It would be an honor to see you on a Climate Ride, Hike or Run in the future.

With deep appreciation,
Caeli Quinn
Co-Founder and Executive Director

"Climate Ride has been the single most effective way for my friends and me to get involved and step up awareness and advocacy about climate change. It has really helped to change and align priorities. Additionally, by cheering me on through the ride and my daily posts, folks felt positively inspired that their contributions mattered. As a newcomer to cycling, Climate Ride was a wonderful activity that helped me succeed."

/Caryn Hoffman/
The financial cost of climate change is mounting and for the United States, the burden of mitigating the fall-out rests on citizens. Though figures vary, according to a recent report by Morgan Stanley, the total cost to stall climate change is nearing $50 trillion dollars or about half the estimated global GDP for 2020 according to Statista. The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) estimates the world will need to spend an average of $2.4 to $3 trillion annually on reforms to stave off the worst problems.

By all estimates, the U.S. is behind. Though one of the world’s top polluters, the United States has withdrawn from key commitments and reduced funding from previous agreements (Nature). According to Marketplace, though the US Government Accountability Office estimates average annual spending on climate change at $6 billion from 1993 to 2018, much of the money contributing to that estimate goes to programs that aren’t documenting climate impact or may not have been using the majority of the funds on climate issues. Under the current administration, even that spending has been reduced dramatically.

To make up the gap, U.S. citizens concerned about climate are turning to charitable organizations. Still, as of 2017, less than 3% of annual US charitable giving went to environmental causes including animal welfare groups (Charity Navigator).

Each year, Climate Ride has run events across the U.S. that provide a place for people concerned about the environmental crisis to make their advocacy ‘active’, whether they are riding secluded canyons rich in the cultural history of the ancestral Puebloan people.

"In 2008, I helped found Climate Ride to make sure there would be a future for the generations that will inherit this planet. That year, we did one ride from NYC to Washington D.C. with 100 people biking to Capitol Hill to meet with members of Congress. Little did I know that in 11 years we would raise over $6.1 million for organizations that are directly fighting climate change and funding sustainable solutions like bike paths, solar installations, and conservation projects that benefit everyone."

people in Bears Ears or from the Blue Mountains to D.C. to petition Congress to act for the climate. Using the power of ACTIVE-ism, people take on a significant physical challenge like biking or hiking across Glacier National Park. As they prepare, they rally their friends and families to donate in support of great charities. Since the first ride in 2008, our organization has contributed over $6 million in grants to nonprofit partners who are leading the way to sustainable solutions.

But, perhaps as important as the monetary contribution, Climate Ride gets people talking to their friends, coworkers, relatives, and communities about climate change. Participants push their social networks on the issue, helping grow a crucial percentage of the overall population needed for creating a real movement. According to a 2018 study from the University of Pennsylvania, as few as 25% of people need to openly take a stand before the wider culture takes action. The efforts of Climate Riders contribute to reaching that tipping point.
MISSION

“To inspire and empower citizens to work toward a sustainable future. By using personal challenges as a means to change lives, Climate Ride is building an effective, citizen-based sustainability movement.”

Climate Ride, founded in 2008, unites advocacy, action, and philanthropy. We are a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that organizes life-changing charitable biking and hiking events to raise awareness and support sustainability, active transportation, and environmental causes.

We help our participants engage in the fight against climate change by completing multi-day bicycling, hiking, and running events to fundraise for the organizations they value most and take action together for the planet. We use sport as a means to change lives and build an effective, citizen-based sustainability movement.

Immersive outdoor experiences and personal challenges are powerful tools for generating behavioral change to help ignite activism on climate policy, raise critical funds, and influence public opinion.

Climate change impacts everything. We are all feeling it, but it impacts communities of color most. While so many people care deeply and want to help address the problem, the enormity of the challenge and the political tone around climate change can feel dispiriting and disempowering. Climate Ride offers a way to make a difference while building new friendships and connections with a global network of outdoor advocates.
MISSION

The Glacier National Park Conservancy assures the Glacier National Park experience by providing support for preservation, education, and research through philanthropy and outreach.

ACTIVITIES

Preservation | The Conservancy funds projects and programs that preserve Glacier’s heritage for future generations.

Education | The Conservancy funds education initiatives to engage current and future park stewards of all ages.

Research | The Conservancy supports world-class research and science exploring the park’s wildlife and alpine landscapes.

SUCCESSES

- Greening Glacier’s Rides – an ongoing project of replacing existing gas vehicles with electric versions
- Making the Apgar Visitor Center net-zero by installing solar panels
- Running a Spring Hiker-Biker Shuttle on the west side of the Going-to-the-Sun Road to reduce congestion from cars

MISSION

350.org is building the global grassroots climate movement that can hold our leaders accountable to science and justice.

ACTIVITIES

Online Campaigns | 350.org distributes online resources in the form of organizing and training workshops and education, videos, education materials, memes, images, and other media to encourage people to: 1) keep carbon in the ground; 2) help build a new, more equitable low-carbon economy; and 3) pressure governments into limiting emissions.

Grassroots Organizing | 350.org has created local groups around the globe in over 188 countries who work in coordination with one another to create demonstrations and international days of action.

Mass Public Actions | 350.org acknowledges that world leaders are incapable of solving climate change on their own. They create opportunities for supporters to get out in the streets and make their voices heard — that is how they demonstrate our power as a movement, and that is how they force governments to make the right decisions.

SUCCESES

- Rallying thousands of people to stop one of Germany’s largest coal mines for a day
- Shifting the conversation on climate change in the United States so that the conservative position is crowded out and liberal and radical solutions of divestment, clean energy subsidies, and alternative solutions become centered
- Organizing the People’s Climate Match which brought together 200,000 people and created 7.6 million social media impressions

MISSION
Earthjustice is the premier nonprofit environmental law organization. We wield the power of law and the strength of partnership to protect people’s health, to preserve magnificent places and wildlife, to advance clean energy, and to combat climate change. We are here because the earth needs a good lawyer.

ACTIVITIES
The Wild | Earthjustice uses the law to preserve a rich, sustainable and diverse natural heritage for current and future generations. They’ve won cases that protect endangered species, threatened wildlands, reduce human impacts on ecosystems, and hold accountable those who damage them.

Healthy Communities | Earthjustice has been fighting for a future where children can breathe clean air, no matter where they live, where the food we feed our families and the products we use in our homes are free of toxic chemicals, and where communities everywhere are safer, healthier places to live and work.

Climate and Energy | Earthjustice is committed to ending the nation’s reliance on fossil fuels and working to secure a clean energy future. Climate change is the single greatest environmental threat facing the world today. At stake is nothing less than our children’s—and our planet’s—future.

SUCCESSES
- Over 115 lawsuits against the Trump administration
- Employing a staff of 130 lawyers who work to defend the planet
- They secured the landmark 2014 Supreme Court ruling that upheld the EPA’s authority to limit carbon pollution

"Climate Ride is a long-time partner of 350.org's grassroots work fighting the climate crisis. Their grant helps us keep fossil fuels in the ground, divest trillions from the fossil fuel industry, and empowers our organizing. 350.org is lucky to have passionate climate riders and hikers like you with us in this fight."

"Our partnership with Climate Ride has literally transformed Glacier National Park. In just the past couple of years, the contributions from Climate Riders funded the conversion of the Apgar Visitor Center to sustainable solar power and fully funded the expansion of spring shuttle services to improve biker access to the iconic Going to the Sun Road. It’s truly incredible to see the combined power people brought together for passion and purpose."

"The funding GRID Alternatives receives from the pedal power of our amazing Climate Riders fuels GRID's vision of a just transition to clean, renewable energy. Support from Climate Ride makes a big impact for low-income communities – powering GRID's work installing no-cost solar for families most impacted by climate change, training workers for jobs in the green economy, and connecting commuters to affordable clean vehicle and transportation options."

Climate Ride immerses participants in stunning landscapes in need of protection. This shared experience creates a national network committed to the environment.

We hike in Glacier National Park to see first-hand the ecosystems most affected by climate change. We pedal around the Salish Sea in the Pacific Northwest. We ride in Bears Ears National Monument to hear about the need for its protection from indigenous elders. We pedal from the Big Apple to the US Capitol to make our voices heard.

Wherever we go, we learn from speakers who are directly working to save that place. Whatever the landscape, however intense the terrain, we join together to defend it.
"Climate Ride Iceland was the most enlightening, rewarding, and flat-out fun adventure I've ever had! My riding-ability anxiousness dissipated after about five minutes into Day 1 and turned into a perma-grin. I wasn't a "live to bike" sort of person, but I'm already looking forward to my next trip!"

In 2019, we successfully launched a new venture—GREEN FONDO—a series of bicycling parties to energize and grow our community of environmental stewards. Green Fondo brings people and nonprofits together for fun weekend events focused on fitness. New riders constituted 75% of those attending and riders ranged in age from 17 to 77. We are optimistic that future Green Fondos will help us expand this movement.

Green Fondo is based on the hugely popular Italian-style Gran Fondo rides that bring people together to enjoy cycling culture.

We’ve combined the love of cycling with love for the planet. Our first Green Fondo took place around a “cycling village” in Marin County, California where over 200 cyclists camped overnight, enjoyed food and entertainment, and met with influencers and thought leaders. Marin County is known for some of the best cycling in the world, from quiet, mountainous roads to cool, coastal landscapes and delightful vineyards.

For this two-day event, there are cycling mileages for all types of riders—40, 60, or 100 miles on the first day, and 25 or 40 miles on the second day. Green Fondo provides an atmosphere where family, friends, and colleagues can all enjoy a cycling event together. The rides are not timed because we want participants to enjoy the miles whatever their style! We plan lovely stops along the way where riders enjoy beautiful surroundings and new friends.

Green Fondo San Francisco sold out all 250 slots!
"I've had the honor of participating in four Climate Rides so far and the experience gets better and more impactful each time. The ride itself is the gold standard – flawlessly and painstakingly planned – with some of the best views and trails I have ever seen.

The fundraising is never as hard and daunting as I think it's going to be as friends and new friends are eager to support this important cause. But most importantly, it's about the people I have met – from the stellar and accomplished crew to the riders who are all doing real things to help the planet be a better place. I always come back feeling better about humanity and the world."

Climate Ride events cultivate an engaging community of like-minded people. Their shared experience energizes them to work together for the cause.

With 4,000 alumni around the globe and growing, Climate Ride continues to increase awareness of the interconnectedness of environmental issues caused by the climate crisis through a network of participants reaching out to their colleagues, families, and friends. Together, they form the Climate Ride movement.

We work to build communities with cleaner air, communities where we ride bikes, drive efficient cars, and live and work in energy-saving, healthy buildings. We empower communities to demand clean energy and smarter transportation systems from our government. Our events cultivate a fun community of like-minded doers. The shared experience energizes us to work together for the cause.
The high-quality experience of Climate Ride events attracts an audience of connectors, influencers, and leaders. Participants in Climate Ride events are reliable, enthusiastic, and knowledgeable—not only of cycling, but also of business, advocacy, and green consumerism.

Together, they represent a powerhouse of knowledge. During our events, participants connect. People who have never talked before become co-authors of a greener future. Activists have camp lunch with CEOs and talk about how to work together. On our rides, advocates for transportation justice climb hills alongside leaders in solar and renewables. Those relationships go on to spur collaborations and innovations in the movement.

DEMOGRAPHICS

WHERE OUR PARTICIPANTS CAME FROM 2008-2019

- West: 46%
- Northeast (includes DC): 33%
- Midwest: 15%
- South: 3%
- Southwest: 1%
- International: 1%

We’ve had participants from every US state except North Dakota, Mississippi, and Arkansas. If you know someone who lives in one of these states, please send them our way!

EVENT PARTICIPANTS

- Ages range from 12–78 years old
- Median age is 39
- 60% do more than 1 event
- 30% of participants are 30 and under
- Typical professions include: lawyers, doctors, students, development and executive directors of environmental nonprofits, community organizers, board members of environmental nonprofits, tech-sector employees
- 50:50 male to female ratio
- 72% exercise 3 times per week or more
- 84% make an effort to choose organic, green, or sustainable products
After participating in Climate Ride, 98% of surveyed participants commit to taking further sustainable actions.
"Your camaraderie and support moved me even more than the stunning views of Death Valley. As this was my first ride with a group, I really didn't know what to expect. I was concerned that my slow pace would annoy others, and that I would feel ostracized.

Now I find myself looking affectionately at our group picture and missing each of you terribly! Woah! What an incredible experience!

Once a month, I get a PSA test done to see if my cancer has started growing again. I just got the latest result a few hours ago and was quite happy to learn that it remains dormant. According to the median statistics, my cancer was supposed to wake up and start growing again 15 months ago... and so I've beaten the odds now for 15 months.

I'm sure that the support I've gotten from you and others has helped me fight cancer and enjoy life in a profound way. This connection is the coolest thing of all."

Community Leader Awards

Climate Ride is committed to building an inclusive environmental movement, led by people with varied backgrounds and perspectives. We provide awards for community and climate leaders. These awards are offered to bike coalitions and other grantees so that their Climate Ride teams can represent the diversity in their communities and widen the conversation on sustainability. We prioritize young people and communities of color.

Our events connect these local leaders to veteran fundraisers and donors, growing the movement. The larger our community is the better we all understand the intersections between environmental and social issues.

Annual Fund donors make these awards possible! Special thanks to the March Conservation Fund, a long-time supporter of the awards.
"I know climate change will affect Cambodia and other developing countries. So I am glad I can learn and see how people change their lifestyle to be better for the environment. Our Climate Ride had a lot of different people but they all have the same heart and believe we can do something for the environment. With their own styles and special strategies too! I was very interested in the guy who cycled across the country and shared about his zero waste living."

"Grassroots advocacy and policy work takes a tremendous mental and emotional toll on nonprofit leaders. Having the opportunity to join Climate Ride on their Big Sur ride as a result of their Community Award was the best thing for my organization’s success in 2019!

Riding with like-minded advocates, environmentalists, and value-driven individuals was refreshing, rewarding, and left me rejuvenated to tackle the biggest issues facing my community. I arrived knowing no one and left with over 100 new friends and allies in the fight for a better world. I am so grateful to Climate Ride for this opportunity.

Thank you Climate Ride!"

"I’m grateful for the Community Award because I’d wanted to do Climate Ride for years, but it felt out of reach. It allowed me to do what I never could have on my own: become a real cyclist, train for this intense 5-day ride, fundraise for Team Active San Gabriel Valley, demonstrate climate action, and challenge myself physically to bike like I’ve never biked before, through miles of peaceful, beautiful landscapes.

A surprise for me was the great feeling of kinship with all the riders — it felt wonderful to be surrounded by so many supportive, cool people from around the country dedicated to this cause, and be in it together: the ride, and the fight for climate action. The camaraderie with my new friends and my team really helped motivate me to keep going.

Climate Ride is such an inspiring experience and I can’t wait to do it again!"

EDUCATION AND AWARENESS

Climate Ride incorporates educational programs and visionary speakers on many of our events while raising the profile of the sustainability movement among participants, donors, sponsors, and the general public.

Climate Ride is more than just hiking or pedaling the miles. A variety of educational programs provide participants insights into climate change impacts and solutions each evening of the event. Participants hike or bike during the day and hear from bright minds at night!
SPEAKERS

"Where you bank, where you have your retirement fund, all that matters. The banks lending the most towards fossil fuels are the four largest US banks. Not only are these banks environmentally irresponsible – they are also socially irresponsible. Racial discrimination and discrimination based on race and national origin. The good news is, we have leverage as people. Also, the good news is that there are sustainable banks that are hard at work solving climate change."

With only three minutes, presenters share their work and most innovative ideas. Then, over the course of the rides, participants keep the conversation going. Beneficiary Ignites give every Climate Ride participant a chance to see their impact, meet leaders in the movement, and add their ideas and motivation to the work of saving our planet.
“Inspirational, yes, but Climate Ride is more than that. It challenges you to do – not just to do the ride, but to change your ways, to advocate for sustainability, to connect with others, to let your guard down and learn, experience and internalize.”

FOSTERING CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

Climate Ride fosters a sense of civic duty and participation that encourages participants to engage with members of Congress, elected officials, and other national leaders.

We have organized more than 600 advocacy meetings over the past decade and brought hundreds of people to Congress to talk to their elected officials. On advocacy days, Climate Riders speak directly to their senators and representatives about their support for climate action and sustainable transportation.

We encourage participants to learn about the issues related to our cause. We’re helping to create a grassroots force of “people-powered” advocates.
PHILANTHROPIC IMPACT

Climate Ride raises funds for the organizations that make the difference on climate change. From 2018 to 2019 alone, Climate Ride delivered more than $1.5 million in grants to charitable organizations.

Climate Ride drives philanthropic impact on the environment, active transportation, and sustainability. Our programs focus on education, building community, connecting generations, and empowering new citizen philanthropists.

All Climate Ride events are charitable, fundraising challenges and in 2018-2019 we supported 129 beneficiary organizations with grants. These beneficiaries are selected for their work on environment, conservation, clean energy, sustainability, climate education, and active transportation advocacy.
GRANT DISTRIBUTION 2008-2019
